Tolerance

Year 2 have been learning about the British Value of Tolerance - accepting that people have differences and not falling out with them about it.

We watched a short film called "For the birds" and spoke about

- Which characters were not being tolerant in the film?
- Why weren't they being tolerant?
- How do you think the big bird felt?
- How could the small birds have been more tolerant of the big bird?

The little birds were mean to the big bird because he didn't look the same as them. They made fun of him and didn't want them to join in with them.

It doesn't matter if we are all different. We are all unique and have different personalities – and that makes it fun.

It would be very boring if we all looked the same and all liked the same things.

Just because we like and believe different things – it doesn't mean we should argue about it. We should just accept that some people like different things than we do.
